EPISODE #7.

THE JUNGLE TRAP

We start the episode as the Lions come through the door, Tarzan swings the outer door open stepping behind same, and the Lions dash through on to the street, after Rokoff, who climbs up a tree firing at them, but missing.

The Warzari Warriors have shaken their pursuers, and return to catch the perpetrators of their misery. They see Rokoff in the tree with the Lions trying to get him, and they hasten into the Chief's hut to see if the Ivory is still there. They discover Tarzan and are about to attack him, when he speaks to them in their tongue, and shows them the French Officer lying on the floor and tells that he has turned the Lions loose to save their ivory. They are grateful to him and declare he is their friend.

Rokoff in the tree continues firing his gun which the Arabs in the distance hear, and return to the village in double time.

Tarzan and the Warriors hear the Arabs return. The Warriors are all for meeting and attacking them, but Tarzan shows them their folly, as the Arabs would kill them with their guns. He tells them to listen to him, and accept his judgment, and sneak back into the Jungle until night falls. They do as Tarzan says, and start sneaking back.

The Arabs arrive and come to Rokoff's rescue, killing some of the Lions, and chasing the others off. Rokoff enters the Chief's hut, and he and the Frenchman are reunited. The Frenchman has been playing possum all this time. They declare they must get the papers back from Tarzan, and start for Opar immediately. The Arabs rebel against Rokoff's plan to start for Opar, but want the Ivory and start removing. Rokoff finally convinces the Arabs that Tarzan has papers on his person, that if delivered will send the entire French Army after them. They are finally convinced and get their guns and start their hunt for Tarzan.

Tarzan and the Warriors scamper through the Woods, when Tarzan calls to the Ape, so he can locate Jane. The Ape returns the call, and the Arzari fugitives are about to put him to death on account of his yealls, when Tarzan who has in the meanwhile left the Warriors to make quicker time by running through the upper terrace, comes on the scene. The Fugitives not knowing Tarzan start to attack him but he gives them the signal of Friendliness, and by this time the Warriors have arrived, and tell the Fugitives of Tarzan's proposed plan of attack. He explains to them that Jane does not belong to the Arabs, and they release her. Tarzan then instructs them in the making of Bows and Arrows.

As night time falls, the bows and arrows have been completed. Tarzan instructs the Women of the Warzari to guard Jane, and with the Men start off toward the village.

Introducing the English party, we find the Professor doing watch duty, when he spies a ship on the horizon and calls to the rest of the party to come and stand guard and set fire to the signal fire, while he goes to try and find Jane and Tarzan.

Tarzan and his men climb into the trees and hide, as Tarzan sees Rokoff and the Arabs searching. Tarzan signals a Warrior to let one of the arrows go, and it pierces an Arab through the heart. The rest of the Arabs are thrown into a panic, and look for their unseen foe, but cant find any.

The Warriors and Tarzan continue shooting Arrows, getting several of the Arabs, and not losing a single Warzari.

Rokoff is furious, and orders the Frenchman to get the Aeroplane that the Frenchman has come down in the Jungle with, and that he has left on the outskirts of the Jungle, and then bomb the Jungle from the Aeroplane. The Frenchman starts away after trying to quiet the Arabs, who are frightened to death. Rokoff spies Tarzan in the trees, and orders his men to shoot at him, but Tarzan has seen him order his men, and quickly runs to another tree, grinning with delight at having outwitted Rokoff.

The Frenchman arrives at the outskirts of the jungle, and finds his Aeroplane that he has left in charge with a mechanic. They start the motor, and away.

Cutting back to the Professor, he finally finds Jane with the Warzari, and they are happy at finding each other.

The Frenchman in his Aeroplane arrives over the Jungle, and the Warzari fugitives are frightened at the Aeroplane, and scamper into the Forest.

Tarzan hearing a noise, climbs into the top bowers to see what it is, when to his surprise he sees the Aeroplane. Climbing down, he orders the Men to get out of the trees as the Frenchman sees Tarzan darting down, lets go a bomb, which explodes as it hits the ground, shattering the tree Tarzan is on, as we cut the episode.
